AVANT-PROPOS

La Faculté des sciences de la santé est présentement dans une phase de croissance phénoménale en matière de recherche et l'année 2005-2006 a été excellente. Les professeurs et professeures de la Faculté ont continué à recevoir des octrois des grands conseils de recherche (CRSH, CRSNG, IRSC) et d'un nombre grandissant d'agences externes. Leur recherche a porté sur des aspects importants de la santé tels que la santé des femmes, des personnes âgées, des francophones en situation minoritaire, les interventions multiples dans le contexte de la santé des populations, les soins palliatifs, la réadaptation et l'autonomie fonctionnelle, la santé et la technologie et la pratique clinique basée sur les faits scientifiques. Le nombre de leurs publications arbitrées a augmenté ainsi que le nombre de leurs présentations lors de conférences avec comité d'arbitrage. Les prix et bourses ont été nombreux, comme l'atteste le nouveau site web de la recherche à la Faculté.

La Faculté des sciences de la santé a travaillé de concert avec son Comité de la recherche pour réviser son programme de subventions et en établir des nouvelles. Le programme comprend maintenant les subventions suivantes : Bourses de recherche pour les étudiants, Subventions pour l'initiation à la recherche, Subventions pour les nouvelles directions, Subventions pour la continuation de la recherche, Subventions pour les déplacements des nouveaux chercheurs, Subventions pour les déplacements des chercheurs séniors, Subventions pour les déplacements des étudiants des cycles supérieurs, Subventions pour les déplacements internationaux du CRSH, Subventions spéciales, Subventions pour les services de consultation statistique, Subventions pour l'organisation de séminaires et Subventions pour l'organisation de conférences. Ce programme, accompagné d'une nouvelle approche qui permet d'octroyer aux nouveaux professeurs et professeures des fonds de démarrage et du temps protégé pour la recherche, a contribué (et devrait continuer) à accroître la cadence du développement de la recherche à la Faculté des sciences de la santé. En termes d'infrastructure de recherche, la Faculté a été très heureuse d'accueillir le Dr Guy Czaika en tant qu'agent de développement de la recherche en 2004 et il a été depuis d'un grand secours aux chercheurs individuels en quête de subventions, de bourses et de publications quoique ses efforts se dirigeront de plus en plus vers une des grandes priorités de la Faculté des sciences de la santé : le développement d'équipes et de projets de recherche interdisciplinaires et internationaux.

En 2005-2006, les chercheurs et chercheures de la Faculté des sciences de la santé étaient affiliés à plusieurs instituts de recherche de la région. Ceux-ci comprenaient l'Institut de recherche de l'hôpital pour enfants de l'Est de l'Ontario, l'Institut de recherche Élisabeth Bruyère, l'Unité de recherche en santé communautaire, l'Institut de recherche et de développement en réhabilitation, l'Institut de santé des populations et l'Institut de recherche en santé d'Ottawa. Les professeurs et professeures sont restés actifs aux plans régional, provincial et national, dans des organismes de recherche comme le CRSH, le CRSNG, le Conseil d'administration des IRSC, des Comités aviseurs des IRSCs, des comités d'évaluation par les pairs, des comités de rédaction, et des comités de recherche provinciaux tels que l'Alliance de recherche en santé de l'Ontario.

Quoique la Faculté ait développé de nouveaux espaces de recherche aux pavillons Guindon et Montpetit, il existe encore une pénurie d'espace de recherche. La Faculté est donc activement impliquée dans la quête de nouveaux espaces de recherche sur le campus et à l'extérieur et est prête à y mettre les moyens financiers.

Je suis extrêmement enthousiaste au sujet de l'état de la recherche à la Faculté et j'entrevois déjà l'année académique 2006-2007 comme encore plus productive. Je termine maintenant un mandat de trois ans comme vice-doyenne et je considère qu'à la Faculté des sciences de la santé, nous avons fait des pas énormes et notre recherche est EN SANTÉ. Nos professeurs et chercheurs peuvent être fiers de cette réussite. J'aimerais en profiter pour les féliciter et leur souhaiter tout le succès possible en recherche dans l'année académique qui vient.

FOREWORD

The Faculty of Health Sciences is experiencing phenomenal growth in terms of research and the year 2005-2006 was a great one. Professors of the Faculty continued to see their research largely funded by the granting councils (SSHRC, NSERC, CIHR) and by a growing number of external agencies. Their research involved many important aspects of health, including women's health, health in the elderly, health needs of Francophones in a minority context, physical activity and health, multiple interventions in population health, palliative care, rehabilitation and functional autonomy, health and technology, and evidence-based practice. The number of their peer-reviewed publications increased as well as the number of their peer-reviewed presentations. Research prizes and awards have been numerous, as can be seen on the new Faculty of Health Sciences research web site.

The Faculty of Health Sciences worked with its Research Committee to revise its existing funding programs and to establish new ones. The following programs are now under way: Research Bursaries for Students, Initiation of Research Grants, New Research Directions Grants, Continued Research Grants, New Researcher Travel Grants, Senior Researcher Travel Grants, Graduate Student Travel Grants, SSHRC International Travel Grants, Special Grants, Statistical Consulting Services Grants, Seminar Organization Grants, and Conference Organization Grants. These programs, in conjunction with a new approach to providing new professors with start-up funds and some protected research time, have contributed (and should continue) to increase the pace of research development at the Faculty of Health Sciences. In terms of research infrastructure, the Faculty has been extremely happy to welcome Dr. Guy Czaika as a research facilitator in 2004 and he has certainly been of great help to individual researchers in the quest for research grants, awards and publications although the bulk of his work should shift to a high priority for our Faculty of Health Sciences: the development of interdisciplinary and international research teams and projects.

In 2005-2006, the Faculty of Health Sciences researchers were affiliated with a number of university-linked research units. These included the Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario Research Institute, the Élizabéth Bruyère Research Institute, the Community Health Research Unit, the Institute of Rehabilitation Research and Development, the Institute of Population Health, and the Ottawa Health Research Institute. Professors remained active on national, provincial and regional research-related bodies such as SSHRC, NSERC, the CIHR Governing Council, several CIHR Institute Advisory Boards, various peer review committees and editorial boards, and provincial research-focused boards such as the Ontario Health Research Alliance.

Although the Faculty developed new research space in Guindon and Montpetit Halls, there is still a notable lack of research space. The Faculty is thus actively looking for research space both on- and off-campus and it is ready to invest in new infrastructures.

I am extremely enthusiastic about the state of research at the Faculty of Health Sciences and I am already seeing evidence that the academic year 2006-2007 will be even more productive. I am now completing a 3-year mandate as Vice-Dean and I can say that we have made giant leaps in terms of research. At the Faculty of Health Sciences, our research is in GOOD HEALTH and our professors and researchers have much to be proud of. I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate them and to wish them the best in their research endeavours in the coming academic year.
